HUFFINGTON stepped away best and took up the early lead ahead of race favourite ALL BANTER, who settled in just behind the speed. The pair moved clear of the field headed by LITTLE RICH BOY with 600 metres to run, rolling along in front at a genuine tempo. At the top of the straight HUFFINGTON looked to kick clear, ALL BANTER chasing hard, HUFFINGTON still leading inside the last 200 metres, DEXELATION emerging out wide after circumnavigating the field from the rear, DEXELATION finishing off the best of the trio, running the fastest splits of the race over the last 400 metres, including the fastest last 200 metres of the day, and running on to score an impressive win.
